"No one creates fashion that blows vour mind besides us."

KANSAI YAMAMOTO

In the early 1970s, Karsas Yamanoto was the coolest Japanese guy walking down the street in London, dressed in a makeskin sucket with his dyed hair in an Afro. A few years later, David Rowie featured Kansan's fashion in his Ziggy Standard tour, broading Kansan's international fame. Since then, Kansai has been a leading language festion desirner, introducing cutting-edge, eccentric, and remational looks that incorporate traditional languese styles into contemporary desires. In 2013, he presented a new collection at the Vertical and Albert Museum in London: From February 6 to 13, a part of the same collection was exhibited in Selfo at the HIPPOHISTA pop-up store, created by the Japanese department store Lutan Mitsukosks.
